

A story comes from 'Frisco of the way in which a prominent bachelor railroad man of Zion, was given a Butte treat by a couple of clever benefactors with whom he has recently been friendly at times. The proposition to go to a quiet little supper was met heartily, and it was later suggested that it be a Butte treat. Now any one who comes from Butte knows the delight of this form, but the railroad man, if he had ever heard, had placed the information in a remote corner of his brain and left it there to languish. He acceded to the proposal readily and found later by the means of the "cuts" drawn that the treat was on him. Worse still, he was not allowed to order, but was supposed to be content with the delight of paying for what the other fellows ordered. Needless to say there were canvassbacks and terrapin and a few other things on the bill, and the bachelor is still debating with himself as to how to get even with the benefactors.

"The night shall be filled with music." Indeed, all the nights of the coming week will be filled with music, for nearly a day will pass without some sort of recital or concert. The week opens with a piano recital given by Miss Gracie Flanders introducing Miss Genevieve Ellerbeck, Miss Judith Evans, Miss Pearl Rothschild and Miss Ethel Hoffmeyer. Mrs. Martha Royle King gives a song recital for Miss Edith Rogers Godbe Wednesday evening. Hugh Douglass will present some pupils in a similar affair Thursday evening, and Mrs. Margaret Robertson Kerr gives a piano recital Saturday evening. Besides all these, the symphony concert of Friday afternoon will be a special feature of musical life, and the Hartmann recital Tuesday evening promises to be a rare treat.

One of the new young violinists who have been added to the Symphony orchestra recently is Miss Donna Begole of Beatrice, Neb., who is here with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Woodruff. Miss Begole will be heard in solo work at the recital to be given next month by Professor George E. Skelton. She was formerly a pupil of Professor Kiskadee of Omaha. She has recently organized an orchestra consisting of young girls, called the Chaquomogan orchestra.

There will be a social sleighing party and a coasting event mixed with it some evening during the coming week. The plan is to load a half dozen or so congenial souls into a big sleigh and take them out to a selected spot and let them enjoy the coasting to the full extent. This will be followed by a few hot things for a supper, and—well, the ride home again.

There is a probability that Mrs. A. E. Walker will go to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras festival, leaving here the latter part of the month for San Francisco, and going south from that point with Mr. and Mrs. James of Philadelphia, who were her guests for a few days during the past week.
